Baca petikan di bawah dengan teliti dan jawab soalan-soalan berikut.

The spider monkey is native to the rainforest of South America. It has a powerful tail and swings from branch to branch. When it hangs upside down, it resembles a huge spider. Spider monkeys reside in rainforests and prefer to live in the trees than on the ground.

A spider monkey travels in a group of about thirty. Then, that same group breaks off into smaller groups. The female is more dynamic and will take charge of the troop. She will lead the group to food sources. Males are less capable of providing resourceful ways for the group.

Spider monkeys are active during the day and sleep at night. They settle themselves high in trees that are unguarded by branches and leaves, leaving an open space to see the sky. They do this for two reasons, as a food source set for them in the trees and to keep away from any threat. If they are attacked, they will defend themselves by scaring their enemies.
